

Kid-Friendly Christmas Crafts

The holiday season is upon us again. This season is a time to spend with your loved ones. And what better way to get your family involved this Christmas than to have fun with some fantastic kid-friendly Christmas crafts. You have so many options when choosing which Christmas crafts would be best for your family. Below you'll find just a sampling of a few great ideas to consider as the holidays come closer.

Cookies: While this isn't a craft, it is a great idea for any holiday or gathering, including Christmas. Kids love to make and decorate cookies. And it's very simple for you, too. Find some Christmas or holiday-themed cookie cutters, and have some fun with your family. Consider letting your children pick out their favorite cookie cutter shapes, whether that is while you're buying new ones or reinstating already owned Christmas cookie cutters. And that's just half the fun. The next part, a part which your whole family will enjoy, is to decorate those Christmas-shaped cookies. Make or buy colorful holiday-related frosting and sprinkles. Each cookie will be unique and reflect the personalities of your children. The next step is to enjoy eating those cookies as a family unit. What could be better than that?

Countdown Chain: If your children are increasingly excited about the upcoming holidays, consider making a paper countdown chain. Buy red and green paper and cut out strips that measure about an inch or two wide and as long as you want, depending on your desired loop size. Cut as many strips as there are days until Christmas or the holiday your children are looking forward to. Loop the strips of colored paper through each existing loop, one at a time, and glue the strip into a loop. Once you've completed your paper countdown chain, hang it up on the wall or somewhere that your children can see and remove a paper link as each day ends or begins. Your children will love this because it is festive and they can easily count how many days until Christmas. Mini Christmas Trees: What child wouldn't love to have his or her own private and personal mini Christmas tree in his or her room? Help your children pick out themes that matches their personalities and likes. It can be a color scheme or anything from penguins to teddy bears. It doesn't matter what your children choose. What matters is that your children are excited and have an outlet to showcase their fun sides. And these are trees and decorations that you can use down the road, with each passing Christmas.

Decorate Stockings: Children love to create something that is their own. Buy a cheap stocking and puff paint, and let your children unleash their creativity. A personalized stocking is a fantastic way to increase your children's excitement and exuberance for Christmas. This is one of those kid-friendly crafts that each and every member of your family will enjoy. Make it a family night and decorate your own stocking as well.

These kid-friendly crafts aren't just for your children. They're for the entire family to enjoy, together. Also consider coming up with great Christmas craft projects with your family. Brainstorm new family craft ideas and get creative. This is a time to make new family memories that you and your children will remember fondly for many years.
